

Egnyte Named Cloud Company of the Year in 2015 Stratus Awards

Recognized for Hybrid, Adaptive Enterprise File Services in Cloud Computing Industry

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. – July 23, 2015 – Egnyte, the market leader in Adaptive Enterprise File Services, today announced it has been named Cloud Company of the Year in the 2015 Stratus Awards for Cloud Computing. The crowd-sourced industry awards program recognizes companies, executives, and their services whose innovative approaches are helping to accelerate the development and adoption of the cloud in consumer and business markets. Egnyte’s open, hybrid architecture enables seamless and secure file sharing for businesses across industries, and the judges recognized its flexible deployment options, noting that “Egnyte’s solutions offer the best of both worlds.”

"We are so proud that our judges awarded Egnyte with a 2015 Stratus Award," said Russ Fordyce, managing director of the Business Intelligence Group. "It is clear that their performance and innovation has accelerated the adoption of the cloud. Congratulations to the entire team."

The underlying theme in this year’s award program was operational excellence, highlighting how Egnyte’s innovations and execution strategies leads to superior customer experiences and greater adoption of cloud-based services.

“Since we founded Egnyte, our team has focused on delivering enterprise file-sharing services to best meet the needs of both IT and business users across industries,” said Vineet Jain, co-founder and CEO at Egnyte. “We’re thrilled to win this award as it’s a testament to our continued efforts to provide the most value to our customers - with the latest features and best user experience.”
